Hundred of Morleston, &c. }
in the County of Derby. }

To the Constable of

BY Virtue of a Warrant from His Majesty's Justices of the Peace, to me directed, THESE are thereby to require you to give Notice to all Persons that sell Ale, Beer, or other Exciseable Liquors, in your Liberty, Personally to appear at the House of Mr. BENJAMIN OAKES, being at the Sign of the Nagg's-Head in DERBY, on Monday the Eleventh Day of September next, by Nine of the Clock in the Morning, then and there to take a new Licence for Selling and Retailing the same: And you are also to give them Notice, that they, and each of them, are at the same Time and Place, to enter into Recognizance of Ten Pounds, with Two Sureties, each in Five Pounds; or with One sufficient Surety in Ten Pounds; for the keeping of good Rule and Order in their respective Houses, during the Continuance of such Licence. And if any Person shall be hinder'd through Sicknes, or Infirmary, to attend in Person, at the abovesaid Meeting; you are to give such Person Notice, to procure Two sufficient Sureties, to appear in his or her Behalf, and to enter into a Recognizance of Ten Pounds each, under the before-mentioned Conditions: And they must also be informed by you, that no Licence will be granted at any Time in the ensuing Year, for selling Ale and Beer, but at this, the abovesaid Meeting. And you the said Constable, and Headboroughs, are to fix immediately after the Receipt of this Warrant,

The Use of this TABLE is to find (by an Ephemeris) the true Place of the Moon at any particular Time of the Day. But first you must know, that all Astronomers begin the Day at Noon, and count 24 Hours to the Day; so that beginning one Day at Noon, the same ends the next Day at Noon; therefore 1 in the Afternoon is the first Hour of the Day, and 13 Hours after Noon is the next Day 1 in the Morning. Now in the following Ephemeris, the Moon's place in the 3d Column in every Month is exactly calculated to the Meridian of London; and to know her daily Motion, you must subtract the Place of the Moon one Day, from her Place the following Day, by adding 30 Degrees grees (if need require it) for so many Degrees hath every Sign and 60 Minutes are in every Degree; so you have the daily Motion of the Moon: Then look for the same in the Head, or the nearest Number you can find, and under it is the Motion of the Moon, agreeing to that Time.

EXAMPLE. To find the Place of the Moon on the 4th Day of January at 8 at Night: Her Place at Noon is $8^{\circ} 8'$, and the next Day is $20^{\circ} 51'$ of the same Sign; therefore her diurnal Motion is $12^{\circ} 43'$: then I find these Numbers, viz. $12^{\circ} 46'$ in the Head of the Table, and against 8 Hours the given Time is $4^{\circ} 15'$, which added to $8^{\circ} 8'$, her Place at Noon, the Sum will be $12^{\circ} 23'$, her Place at 8 o'Clock that Night.

1. The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the car was the cold. It wasn't just the temperature, but the way it felt like a blanket, wrapping around me. I shivered, pulling my coat tighter. The air smelled different here, sharper, more alive than back home.

2. As I walked towards the entrance, I noticed the way the light hit the floor. It was polished to a mirror finish, reflecting everything in its path. I looked down at my shoes, feeling a bit out of place. The carpet was plush, soft underfoot.

3. The receptionist smiled at me, her eyes crinkling at the corners. She was young, maybe in her late 20s, with dark hair pulled back. She handed me a card, her fingers cool against mine. I took it, feeling a mix of curiosity and apprehension.

4. The card was simple, with a logo I didn't recognize. It felt like a key, opening a door I didn't know existed. I looked up at her, trying to catch her name. She smiled again, her voice soft and reassuring.

5. I followed her down a long, brightly lit hallway. The walls were a neutral color, and the floor was the same polished material. I noticed a few other people in the distance, but they seemed to be in a different world, going about their business.

6. The room I was taken to was spacious and modern. It had large windows looking out onto a city skyline. The furniture was comfortable, and the lighting was warm. I felt a sense of relief, like I had finally found a place where I belonged.

7. The night was quiet, with only the soft hum of the air conditioning. I lay in bed, looking up at the ceiling. My mind was racing, trying to make sense of everything that had happened. The city lights were visible through the window, a constant reminder of the world outside.

8. In the morning, I woke up feeling refreshed. The room was still the same, but the atmosphere was different. It felt like a new beginning, a chance to start over. I got up, stretching my limbs, and looked out the window. The sun was rising, painting the sky in shades of orange and pink.

9. I walked back to the reception desk, where the young woman was still working. She looked up at me, her smile as warm as ever. I handed her the card back, feeling a sense of closure. She thanked me, her eyes meeting mine.

10. As I stepped back into the car, I looked back one last time. The building was a mix of old and new, a testament to the city's history. I felt a pang of nostalgia, remembering the old days. But then I looked forward, seeing the road ahead. It was a new road, leading to a new future.

11. The car started, and I drove away. The city was still there, but it felt different now. It felt like a place I had truly discovered, a place where I could call home.

12. The night was peaceful, with a gentle breeze blowing through the trees. I closed my eyes, feeling a sense of calm. The world was still out there, but for now, it was just me and the quiet.

13. The morning brought a new day, with the sun shining brightly. I felt a sense of hope, like everything was finally falling into place. The road ahead was clear, and I was ready to take it.

14. The afternoon was warm, with a golden glow. I sat on a bench, looking out over the city. The buildings were bathed in light, and the air was filled with the scent of flowers. It was a beautiful sight, a moment of pure joy.

15. The night was dark, with the stars shining brightly. I looked up at the sky, feeling a sense of wonder. The universe was so vast, and I was so small. But then I thought of the people I loved, and I felt a sense of peace.

16. The morning was bright, with the sun rising over the horizon. I felt a sense of renewal, like everything was starting over. The world was still the same, but I felt like I had grown.

17. The afternoon was quiet, with a gentle breeze. I walked through a park, feeling a sense of freedom. The trees were tall and leafy, and the grass was soft. It was a perfect day, a day to be remembered.
